ACHESON UPSET
POLICY IN IRANAmbassador Hurley New Charges in Stormy Session Before Senators.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—(AP)—Ambassador J. Hurley shouted in a stormy session of the senate foreign relations committee today that Dean Acheson had "defeated" American policy in Iran.

Hurley, who is now undersecretary of state, No. 1 man under Secretary Byrnes. He formerly was an assistant secretary.

Hurley, who resigned last week as ambassador to China, did not explain immediately the basis for his contention that Acheson had defeated American policy in the near eastern country.

He and Chairman Connally (D-Tx) shouted back and forth at each other before the testimony was taken on the record.

The white-mustached ex-diplomat objected to Connally's questioning and demanded to know the Texas senator wanted to say in place of him.

Connally admonished him that he was going to be continued in courtesy and repeated, referring to Hurley's assertions about Iran:

"All right," Hurley answered grimly. "It was Dean Acheson."

He then launched into a description of the circumstances surrounding the writing and issuing of the American-British-Russian declaration at Tehran regarding Iran.

When he completed that portion of his testimony the senators appeared puzzled at the connection with Acheson, but no one questioned him immediately on the point.

Meanwhile Artemus L. Gates, navy undersecretary, paid his second call on President Truman since his return from a trip which included a tour of China. He wouldn't talk about the conference.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) demanded answers today to three questions arising out of the senate foreign relations committee hearing on Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley's resignation as ambassador to China.

Bridges said the debonair diplomat opening testimony yesterday convinced him that Hurley had been "sabotaged" by his subordinates at Chungking and in Washington.

Wants To Know
Bridges said he wants the answers to these questions:

1. Why did the subordinates try to undermine his work?

2. Why are they still holding responsible posts in the diplomatic service?

3. Why did the President and the state department refuse to support General Hurley?

Byrnes To Answer
Before the hearing ends, Byrnes is expected to give the committee the state department's side in the smoldering controversy which flared openly when Hurley resigned last week.

After Hurley had complained yesterday that Byrnes had demanded to issue a public statement supporting his hand as envoy to China, Chairman Connally (D-Tx) contended: "You just say something in the news."

The white-mustached diplomat's answer was that he is not true to his country's government, but that he wanted to arm the Communists.

Lists Charges
Hurley declared that John S. Acheson had proposed in October, 1944, that Chiang Kai-shek's government be allowed to collapse, and that George Acheson Jr. had proposed to "destroy" that government by obtaining lend-lease supplies for the Chinese Communists.

Hurley didn't get the arms, Hurley said, and Acheson and Service now say as political advisors Douglas MacArthur, he said.

Hurley named three others he believed were "disloyal" to him—James H. Doolittle, former second secretary at Chungking, now in Moscow; Fulton Freeman, former secretary at Chungking, and John G. Hurley, Page 14)

TWO TOP JAPS

Leaders on List.

By The Associated Press
TOKYO, Dec. 6—Two powerful political figures whom many of the Japanese themselves consider among their top war criminals—Prince Fumimaro Konoye and Marquis Kido—were ordered arrested as war crimes suspects by General MacArthur today.

Seven other men whose activities date back to the imperialistic prelude of the Pacific war also were listed as wanted Konoye, the leading prince who served as one of Japan's most prized "front men," had been premier three times. Kido, a small, shrewd wire-puller, served as Emperor Hirohito's right hand man throughout the war.

To Name Royals
Jittery Tokyo received another shock before it had recovered from MacArthur's announcement. Japanese Communists announced they would release on Saturday a list of 1,000 alleged Japanese war criminals, including the emperor and empress.

In the diet, Premier Kijuro Shidehara declared that his government was in no position to criticize the Allied lists. He said he had no information on how many persons the occupation authorities intended to indict, or try.

Kyodo news agency said that Shidehara's cabinet had received a serious blow when it failed to obtain an Allied reprieve for Prince Morisima Nashimoto, who was named as a war crimes suspect several days ago. Rumors are circulating that the cabinet will be forced to resign at the end of the diet session, Kyodo reported.

MARSHALL DENIES U.S. BOUND

Reopens GM Strike Parley

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Dec. 6—In the light of a new government wage-price policy, General Motors Corp. prepared to discuss wages with the CIO United Auto Workers today for the first time since the striking union brought virtually all GM operations to a standstill 16 days ago.

The resumption of full negotiations, including the union's demand for a 30 per cent pay raise, followed a secret meeting of General Motors and UAW-CIO representatives at Pittsburgh.

President Philip Murray of the CIO, who called the meeting, said "all points in dispute" would be considered. Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president and leader of the GM wage fight, later added that the corporation had agreed "there will be no strings attached to this time."

Had Talked Before
General Motors previously had refused to negotiate other issues until what it termed "illegal picketing" had been stopped.

On what terms a settlement might be reached remained the big question, especially in view of the union's demand for the 30 per cent increase above present wage levels and within the present price structure.

The new government policy, announced by Stabilization Administrator John C. Collet, permits manufacturers to seek price increases to offset wage boosts up to 33 per cent above the levels of January, 1941. It does not guarantee, however, that the OPA would grant such increases.

Reuther, speaking at a strikers' rally at Buffalo last night, said "we are making a fight in the most important company and in the most basic section of American economy. That's why we in General Motors are going to make this fight more than a nickel in the pay envelope."

Reuther and other UAW leaders have expressed the opinion that any concessions gained from General Motors—largest of the auto industry's "Big Three"—are virtually won for the entire industry.

For this reason, a union spokesman said, some 450 presidents and stewards of Chrysler Corp. locals voted here last night to continue work "for three months, if necessary" despite a breakdown in contract negotiations.

The Chrysler-UAW contract was terminated after the union rejected Tuesday night a management offer to extend it for a year and the company turned down a union-proposed extension to Jan. 15.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Top Republicans in congress headed today for a national committee meeting in Chicago bearing a general platform for the 1946 congressional elections.

The 1,000-word document carries the approval of party members in both house and senate, who accepted it as an interim Republican statement of aims and purposes.

Its main provisions:

1. Foreign Affairs—Full support of the United Nations Organization and relief measures abroad to prevent chaos through misery.

2. National Defense—Support a well trained and fully equipped Army, Navy and Air Force.

3. Domestic Economy—Lighten taxes and reduce the national debt, bring government outlay in line with income, economize in government spending, and remove wartime restrictions and controls as soon as possible.

4. Labor Policy—Reaffirm labor's right to organize and bargain collectively, contracts to be mutually binding. Press for improvement of governmental machinery to settle labor disputes peacefully.

One labor plank recommended by the house committee which drafted the document was deleted before its acceptance by house and senate Republicans yesterday.

This plank declared that no organization of capital or labor should be permitted either directly or indirectly to use its funds for any political party or candidate.

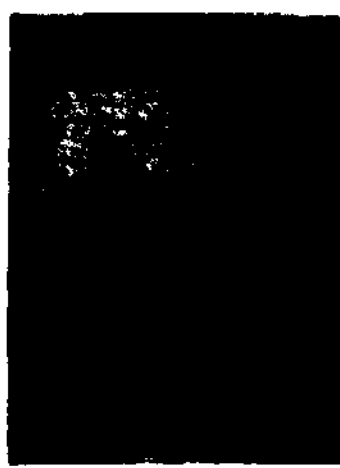

The platform will be presented to the Republican national committee at its Chicago sessions tomorrow and Saturday.

HITLER PEACE
LIES SHOWN UPTrial Records Reveal Fuehrer
Set War Date 5 Months
Before Attack.

By The Associated Press
NUERNBERG, Dec. 6—Adolf Hitler secretly agreed upon Sept. 1, 1939 as the date for the invasion of Poland five months in advance while falsely proclaiming to the world that he had no thought of further aggression, German records introduced at the international war crimes trial disclosed today.

Proving the lie of Hitler's diplomatic double talk with the Fuehrer's own official records, British prosecutors revealed that a Wehrmacht directive dated April 3, 1939, ordered the army to be ready for the Polish invasion "at any time from Sept. 1, 1939, onwards."

Professors Peace
Three weeks after the Nazi "Der Tag" had been set, Hitler made a speech to the Reichstag on April 28 in which he shouted that he "had no thought of proceeding in any way against Poland," according to other documents introduced as evidence at the trial of 20 top Nazis accused of war crimes.

Hitler's public proclamation, contrasted with his cold-blooded plans for launching World War II, "shows how completely dishonest was the German government at that time," commented Col. McEwen Griffith-Jones, assistant British prosecutor.

Germany's Axis partner, Italy, was not let in on the plan to invade Poland until Aug. 12, 1939, and Mussolini made an urgent but fruitless request for Hitler to postpone the war for two or three years to permit Italian rearmament to progress, other documents showed.

SAYS M'VAY SHOUTED
ABANDON SHIP ORDER

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—The Navy general court martial heard testimony that Capt. Charles B. McVay, III, shouted verbal orders to abandon ship approximately 10 minutes after the cruiser Indianapolis was stricken by the first of the two explosions which sank her.

Edward H. Koyne, counsel, who was standing watch on board-ward's mate of the vessel when the heavy cruiser was hit, told the court that he saw McVay shout orders over the ship's loud speaker system, "Abandon ship, it's out of control and burning."

This testimony was a direct testimony to the fact that McVay was not the only one who shouted the order to abandon ship, and that the order was given at a time when the ship was still afloat and burning.

The testimony was given in response to a question by the court as to whether or not McVay was the only one who shouted the order to abandon ship.

Early Warnings
from Marshall to Hawaii ToldFiles Reveal Short Advised of Danger; 1940 Jap Alert
Bared.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Pearl Harbor investigators learned today that Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short took command at Hawaii with advice from Gen. George C. Marshall that:

1. The danger time for Hawaii would be "the first six hours of known hostilities," and

2. The "real perils" were "sabotage" and "surprise raid by air and by submarine."

This was disclosed when the senate-house investigating committee received files of correspondence between Marshall, then Army chief of staff, and Short, from February to October, 1941.

Also disclosed were exchanges between Marshall and Lt. Gen. C. D. Herron, 1940 commander in Hawaii, detailing the history of an "alert" ordered that year because of fear of a Japanese sneak raid.

The fact that Hawaiian forces were kept on the alert for months in 1940, on direct orders from the war department, was disclosed in the Army Pearl Harbor inquiry board's report made public last August.

Letter Is Quoted
The first document in the Marshall-Short file was a letter dated Feb. 7, 1941, when Short took over his command in which the chief of staff told him:

"My impression of the Hawaiian problem has been that if no serious harm is done us during the first six hours of known hostilities, thereafter the existing defenses would discourage an enemy against the hazard of an attack."

"The risk of sabotage and the risk involved in a surprise raid by air and by submarine, constitute the real perils of the situation. Frankly, I do not see any landing threat in the Hawaiian islands as long as we have air superiority."

Marshall added that "the full protection for the fleet is the ('the' underscored) rather than a ('a' underscored) major consideration for us."

The chief of staff said he would do all he could to strengthen air protection in Hawaii and was making into the possibility of getting barrage balloons from England.

Short Takes Action
Short wrote Marshall a lengthy letter Feb. 19 outlining conditions he found and saying he was taking steps, among other things, for:

1. Cooperation with Navy.
2. Dispersion and protection of aircraft and of the repair, maintenance and servicing of aircraft.
3. Improvement of the harbor defense artillery.

On March 3, Marshall asked for "early review" of the situation on defense from an attack. He said that the existing defensive system of coordinating all available means "is a matter of first priority."

Short replied that one of the first projects he had investigated was the strengthening of the harbor defense artillery.

He said the harbor defense artillery was being strengthened by the addition of new guns and the improvement of the existing ones.

Short also mentioned the improvement of the harbor defense artillery.

TELLS PROBERS
NO PACT MADE
BEFORE ATTACKGeneral Reveals He "Robbed"
U. S. of Fighter Planes
To Protect Hawaii.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—General George C. Marshall testified today there was nothing in Allied staff conferences before Pearl Harbor that committed this nation to go to war unless attacked in the Pacific.

The wartime chief of staff told the joint congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee that he participated in these conferences of American, British, Canadian and Dutch officers.

His testimony was elicited to clear up contentions that the United States was committed to wait before Dec. 7, 1941, the day the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor.

Chief Counsel William Mitchell took over questioning of Marshall, one of the most important witnesses of the inquiry, and dwelt at length on the pre-war military talks.

Marshall testified also that early in 1941 he decided "to rob practically all combat pursuit squadrons in the United States of most of their P-36 planes" for the defense of Hawaii.

The matter of sending additional pursuit planes to Hawaii was brought up by Counsel Mitchell.

Mitchell recalled a War-Navy agreement in early 1941 that attack from the air was Pearl Harbor's "No. 1 danger."

Planned Survey
As a result of that, Marshall said he sought "to see what radical measures might be taken to meet to a degree" the needs of the Pacific outpost.

"I made the decision," he said, "to rob practically all combat pursuit squadrons in the United States of most of their P-36 planes."

The general explained that there were certain engine defects in the then new P-40 (Warhawk) fighter planes.

Thirty P-36's were rounded up, he recalled, leaving most fighter squadrons in the United States with three P-36's apiece. Marshall said the 30, 1936, pursuit planes already in Hawaii, brought the total there to 50.

In all his planning, Marshall asserted, he had in mind "planes and guns for defense against an air attack on Hawaii."

As far back as Feb. 4, 1941, the committee learned, Marshall stated at a conference with General H. H. Arnold, Air Force chief, Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, intelligence head, and Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, war plans chief, that:

- 1.—The Navy had too few anti-aircraft guns for defense against torpedoes carried by either submarine or plane.

- 2.—The planes available in Hawaii were out of date and there should be "a reasonable number" of the latest planes which would "take care of the situation."

Marshall said that he had been told that the Navy had too few anti-aircraft guns for defense against torpedoes carried by either submarine or plane.

Dehydrated Sweet Potatoes May Boom South's Livestock

By The Associated Press
ATLANTA, Dec. 6.—The sweet potato—and dehydrated sweet potato—may make it possible for the one-crop south to become a great livestock country.

Southern soil can, and does, produce sweet potatoes in a big way—75 bushels or more to the acre. The sweet potato is a carbohydrate just as corn is.

Now for a matter of mathematics.

In livestock feed value, three bushels of potatoes equal more than one bushel of corn. Seventy-five bushels of potatoes to the acre equals 25 bushels of corn. The average corn yield in the midwest is 35 bushels to the acre. In Georgia it is 10.

It's easier in the south, farm experts say, to grow 150 bushels of sweet potatoes an acre—the equivalent of 50 bushels of corn—than it would be to attain the national average of corn production.

This view was expressed recently by Dean Paul W. Chapman of the Georgia College of Agriculture, who sees the day when the dehydrator will be as common in the south as the cotton gin.

Until recently there has been no successful way of dehydrating the sweet potato on an economic scale. But a trial plant operation, according to the magazine, has been operating a year now.

at Perry, Ga., and a recent public demonstration drew agriculturalists from all parts of the south. Such a plant costs about $15,000.

The demonstrators say that the cost of dehydrating amounts to about $2.85 a ton, including bagging. Extension specialists say that cattle thrive on the sweet potato meal.

He says that experiments at the Georgia experiment station produced 82 per cent more milk by feeding cows sweet potato meal than was produced by feeding them corn meal.

Alexander of Fountain street, steam derrick engineer with the Erie railroad here, was pictured in the December issue of the Erie Railroad Magazine demonstrating an air controlled device for opening and closing the firebox door on a steam derrick. The device is Mr. Alexander's invention, designed to facilitate the operation, according to the magazine item.

HYDRAULIC CO. PLANS HOUSING

Will Build Twelve New Homes for Employees at Mt. Gilead.

The Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Co. of Mt. Gilead, Morrow's largest industry, has adopted a program of home construction in an effort to solve the housing problem for its employees. Announcement of the new plan was made today by H. A. Toulmin Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the company.

Mr. Toulmin announced the company had decided to build 12 new homes to be occupied by employees. The plan has been approved by the board of directors because of what they termed a serious housing shortage in Mt. Gilead.

A building committee composed of G. B. Robinson, E. W. King, T. A. Campbell, W. W. Stewart and A. L. Boggs has been appointed to study all phases of the building program. Mr. King will serve as committee chairman.

The location of these new homes is yet to be determined. The company owns considerable land in Mt. Gilead, and it is quite possible that the new homes will be built on existing company property. The homes will not be for sale, but will be retained for rental to H-P-M employees only.

Company officials today expressed the hope that their building program would be the start of considerable home building in Mt. Gilead. The need for an extensive building program is extremely urgent, they point out.

Officials add that returning servicemen and new H-P-M employees are finding it practically impossible to find suitable housing in Mt. Gilead. While they are aware that the houses the company expects to build will not take care of existing requirements, they hold to the hope that individuals in the town financially able to build homes will do so.

Search in Xenia for Distant Gillman Kin

Theodore P. Frericks, administrator of the estate of the late Dave Everett Gillman, who died suddenly Saturday afternoon leaving $4,000 in war bonds, was checking the possibility that distant relatives may live in Xenia, O. At the time of his death it was thought that a cousin lived there but first efforts to find him failed.

At the direction of the probate court, funeral services are being held for Mr. Gillman today at 2:30 p. m. in the Edwin K. Smith Home for Funerals with Rev. Joel Hartman, pastor of the First Pilgrim Holiness church officiating. Burial was made in the Marion cemetery.

WARNING IS ISSUED ON TAX EXEMPTION

Organizations Exempted Must File in Advance.

Clubs and other organizations wishing tickets for holiday dances or other entertainment, eligible for exemption from the collection of the amusement tax, should not, in making their plans, overlook the filing of an application for the exemption at the earliest possible time, Carroll W. Davidson, tax examiner for Marion county said today.

Such groups, which because of their status are exempted from the tax are reminded that if the application for exemption is not filed before the event, the exemption is void and the tax applies at three per cent less the federal tax. This, according to the Ohio admissions tax law on amusements and entertainments, will be assessed and collected. After the application is filed it must be passed by the department of taxation at Columbus, he states.

All other entertainments where admissions are charged must make application for either a permanent or temporary amusement license before the event to avoid penalty, collect the tax and make a report on the same on or before the 10th of the following month according to the law.

TRIALS

The 20 accused Nazis Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding judge on the four power tribunal, announced that the trial would recess over the Christmas holidays, from Dec. 20 to Jan. 2.

Not Just Debate

This is no ordinary parliamentary debate. It is a maneuvering for position by two fundamentally different political creeds. This debate will settle nothing, but it emphasized that England's way of life is in the melting pot. The big question is how these two extremes will resolve their differences—whether it will be done by amicable reasoning or whether it may follow the lines so grimly predicted by Churchill a few days ago when he said:

"I foresee with sorrow, but without fear, that in the next few years we shall come to fundamental quarrels in this country. It seems impossible to escape the fact that events are moving and will move towards the issue—the people versus the Socialists."

Yesterday's debate began quietly enough as Oliver Lyttelton, minister of production in the late Conservative cabinet, made a motion of censure against the government. It was an impressive speech, for the ancient chamber of the house of lords (commons has been using this since its own hall was bombed during the war) was crowded with the largest attendance since the general election.

Was it prophetic that this chamber of the noble lords should be jammed with Socialists who are bent on smashing tradition for the benefit of the working man?

See Reorganization

Lyttelton charged that the government's program meant reorganization of the individual if the Socialist schemes were to succeed. He accused the party in power of creating inflation, of saying that all nationalization schemes are inflationary.

The Laborites met this first attack with easy self-assurance in their big majority of about 200. Lyttelton's bitterest shots were met with deep belly laughs. A few were slung to anger as the result of a hot exchange between Churchill and Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, who answered Lyttelton.

Today winds up this debate over the motion of censure—the climax of this drama, with Churchill and Herbert Morrison, the leader of the house of commons, pitted against each other. They are two of the hardest hitters in commons.

Life in England EX-FASCIST HELD IN Getting Shakeup, MACKENZIE FINDS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP World Traveler

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The great political, social and economic changes through which this heart of the British empire is passing are a source of constant wonder to the visitor who is returning after a considerable absence, as is the case of this columnist.

Indeed, the average Englishman himself has some conception of the real significance of this metamorphosis. He is too close to it to see too much of a part of it—and on this basis the foreign visitor, who has known his England well, perhaps has the advantage of a better perspective.

Old traditions are being shattered like glass balls in a shooting gallery. Class distinctions are drawing closer together, and the old school tie has lost much of its magic as a passport to special privileges.

The landed gentry is fast disappearing, and there has been such a mighty leveling off of incomes that the time is past when great fortunes can be accumulated.

We got a vivid flash of all this in the fierce clash at arms which began yesterday in the house of commons and is continuing today—a battle royal between the new labor government and its Conservative opponents led by Churchill, son of a long line of nobility representing the bluest blood in England. It is the Tories' first real assault on the Socialists since the latter were elected to power six months ago.

Not Just Debate

This is no ordinary parliamentary debate. It is a maneuvering for position by two fundamentally different political creeds. This debate will settle nothing, but it emphasized that England's way of life is in the melting pot. The big question is how these two extremes will resolve their differences—whether it will be done by amicable reasoning or whether it may follow the lines so grimly predicted by Churchill a few days ago when he said:

"I foresee with sorrow, but without fear, that in the next few years we shall come to fundamental quarrels in this country. It seems impossible to escape the fact that events are moving and will move towards the issue—the people versus the Socialists."

Yesterday's debate began quietly enough as Oliver Lyttelton, minister of production in the late Conservative cabinet, made a motion of censure against the government. It was an impressive speech, for the ancient chamber of the house of lords (commons has been using this since its own hall was bombed during the war) was crowded with the largest attendance since the general election.

Was it prophetic that this chamber of the noble lords should be jammed with Socialists who are bent on smashing tradition for the benefit of the working man?

See Reorganization

Lyttelton charged that the government's program meant reorganization of the individual if the Socialist schemes were to succeed. He accused the party in power of creating inflation, of saying that all nationalization schemes are inflationary.

The Laborites met this first attack with easy self-assurance in their big majority of about 200. Lyttelton's bitterest shots were met with deep belly laughs. A few were slung to anger as the result of a hot exchange between Churchill and Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, who answered Lyttelton.

Today winds up this debate over the motion of censure—the climax of this drama, with Churchill and Herbert Morrison, the leader of the house of commons, pitted against each other. They are two of the hardest hitters in commons.

Marshall Denies U. S. War Pact

(By The Associated Press)

Additional warnings to General Short, it must fall on the war plans division and as chief of the division at that time, I accept the responsibility.

Gerow's testimony was on the point that Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short had put into effect only a "sabotage" and not a full alert at Pearl Harbor in response to a message from Marshall.

Gerow told the committee that Short's reply to the warning message sent him Nov. 27, 1941, over Marshall's name apparently was delivered first to Marshall, then to Secretary of War Stimson and then to his (Gerow's) office in the war plans division.

But he said he failed to note at the time that Short had replied only that he had put into effect a sabotage alert.

Assumed Too Much

Gerow told the committee that when the Nov. 27 message went over Marshall's signature—the chief of staff was attending Louisiana maneuvers at the time—Gerow felt that Short would institute reconnaissance and take other measures immediately.

In the background of Marshall's appearance today was the Army inquiry board report made public last August which said the General failed:

1. To keep Short fully advised of the tenseness of the situation, of which information he had an abundance and Short had little.

2. To follow up what the board said was clear, "that General Short had misunderstood and misconstrued" the Nov. 27 message from Marshall.

3. To get information "indicating that Short intended to break" to Short on the evening of Dec. 6 and the early morning of Dec. 7.

4. To investigate and determine the readiness between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7 "despite the impending threat of war."

BRITISH SWING HUGE LOAN FROM AMERICA

LONDON, Dec. 6.—A United States loan of $4,400,000,000 to Britain, subject to approval by congress and parliament, was announced today in the British press, and was hailed as a boon to war trade.

Official announcement of the agreement, following 12 weeks of negotiations between the two countries in Washington, was expected to be made tonight simultaneously in the two capitals.

The London press said the agreement called for repayment over a 50-year period starting from 1946, and declared no interest would be payable for the first five years. Thereafter, the accounts said, the rate of interest would be 2 per cent—about $88,000,000, the first interest paying year.

London newspapers said the agreement provided that of the total amount of the loan, $650,000,000 would be used in payment for goods in process of delivery to Britain when lend-lease was ended. The papers, quoting the Washington correspondents, said the loan itself—$3,750,000,000—and the $650,000,000 lend-lease aid settlement would be repaid in precisely the same terms.

CHIANG VIEWS ON PACT EYED

Say China Peace Hinges Reaction to Proposal for Coalition.

By The Associated Press
 CHINA, Dec. 6.—The peace or war in China on acceptance by Chiang Kai-shek of the general principle of a coalition government, Communist circles at this headquarters city said today to sell that point to the masses caused the failure Gen. Patrick Hurley's United States ambassador to make any impression on the subject and even refused to take Communist leaders to the government immediately.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

The approaching peace talks at Chungking, like the entire course of the negotiations, would be helped by considering the published Communist demands. Yen-hsi says Mao Tse-tung, the Communist leader, in a recently published book "On Coalition Government" forecast election of a central government dedicated to pursuing a policy of state managed, private managed, cooperatively managed economy. "The culture of this new state should be commonly owned by the ordinary people, not for the small privileged minority," he wrote.

Mao's concrete program asked for abolition of Kuomintang one-party dictatorship, punishment of pro-Japanese elements and traitors; abolition of all secret political police and concentration camps and abolition of all laws suppressing freedom of the press, speech, assembly and association.

Other Objectives
 The program also asks recognition of the legal status of all parties, release of political prisoners, recognition of popularly elected government in liberated areas, improvement of the conscription system, aid to retired veterans, large relief funds for large scale relief to war-torn people, abolition of extortion taxes and levies, agrarian reforms, low interest rates to poor peasants, relief to students and improvement of Sino-Soviet relations.

On Oct. 10, Mao and Chiang reached an agreement on three of these principles. They were termination of a period of political tutelage with the calling of a national assembly agreement in principle to legalize political parties, and release of political prisoners other than traitors.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 million of busy men flush out poisons, waste from their blood. Get Doan's Pills.

69 Years on Erie, Conductor Makes Last Passenger Run

MARION, N. J., Dec. 4.—Conductor of the only Erie train to reach Jersey City during the war, Samuel Johnson, 69, today made his last passenger run. He is believed to be the oldest railroad employee in the United States at the time of retirement. Snyder entered the service as a brakeman in 1876, later becoming a flagman, and passenger conductor, master, and again returning to passenger run.

son of a railroad man, Snyder was dean of conductors of the Erie system for 14 years. Today after 69 years of service, he stands unparaleled in the industry. According to Snyder, Erie superintendent at Jersey City, and former superintendent at Marion.

Throughout this long period Snyder never been a single moment from a passenger or workman regarding Snyder's performance of duty, perfect or attendance on the train, Snyder said.

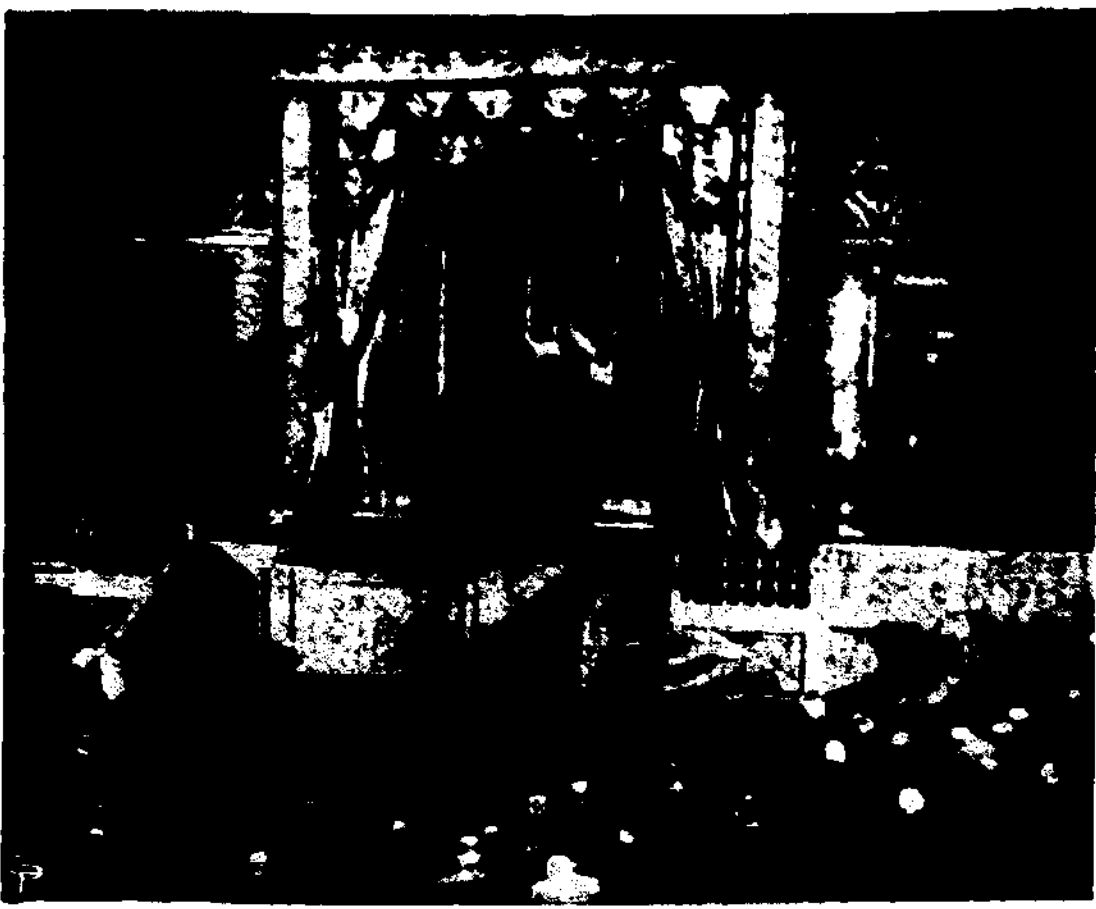

Snyder estimates he has made some 22,500,000 passenger trips and traveled 2,500,000 miles, equivalent to 2,500 trips on the 1000-mile run to Chicago.

Snyder started out trains coupled by links and pins, and burned kerosene stoves. He has seen four major wars—the Civil War, Spanish-American War, and World Wars I and II.

During the noted blizzard of 1918 Snyder's train was the only one to reach Jersey City. About 20 women passengers who could not reach hotels or their homes stayed in the coaches. Snyder brought food, tended fires and played host to his charges, meanwhile making headquarters in a mail car.

Snyder's wife and daughter have several summer cottages on the Jersey shore which he plans to keep in condition, and he expects to do some work around home. With a liberal pension he plans to take things easy, although the railroad veteran still doesn't like the idea of quitting work.

When travel conditions ease up—“Why I'm going to make a trip to California—by rail, of course!”

NASH 600 MODEL GOES ON DISPLAY HERE

E. E. Drumm, operator of the Drumm Auto Sales at 244 North Main street, today announced he had obtained the agency in Marion county for Nash automobiles.

The agency will operate under the name of E. E. Drumm Nash Sales.

Temporarily the agency will be located at Drumm's present building, but plans have been completed for construction of a new building for sales and service at 342 North Main street, at the corner of Farming street.

The new building will be erected and occupied as soon as materials become available.

One of the new 600 Model Nash cars, a four-door deluxe sedan, now is on display at 244 North Main street.

Mr. Drumm has been in the automobile business for 10 years and has been in Marion since 1939. For the last two and one-half years he has operated his own sales organization here. He is a native of Marion and lives at 488 Olney avenue.

The 600 model is the smaller of two models built by Nash. The other is the Ambassador Six.

The 600 model is the one for which the company points to exceptional gasoline mileage of 25 to 30 miles a gallon. The car rides six people with comfort. Light weight has been achieved, saving a quarter ton dead weight, through the method of constructing the body and frame as a single steel welded unit.

Nash models offer individual coil spring suspension on all four wheels. They also are equipped with an air conditioning system that provides a steady change of draftless, filtered, thermostat-controlled fresh air with all windows closed.

Surviving with his widow are a daughter, Miss Lois Langstaff, teacher in the Cleveland Heights schools, a son, Richard Langstaff, principal of Scott High school in Toledo, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Wyatt of Waldo.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. in the Langstaff home by Rev. Donald S. Hobbs, pastor of the Baptist church. Burial will be in Glendale cemetery near Richwood. The body will be taken from the Hastings funeral home tonight to the Langstaff home, where friends may call.

LAUSUMBE ASKS TO HELP

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 4.—Gov. Lausche intends to practice with the preachers in connection with Ohio's housing shortage. The governor recently appealed to Ohioans to rent spare rooms to war veterans to help alleviate the state's housing situation. Yesterday he asked the Ohio attorney general's advice on whether it was permissible to rent out part of the state-owned governor's mansion, a 27-room, three-story edifice.

Committee Named To Seek Housing Solution for Marion

J. J. Stafford Heads Group Appointed by Robert E. White, Chamber of Commerce President.

By MARY HERRING

A committee under the leadership of John J. Stafford, president of the Home Federal Savings and Loan Co. has been formed to investigate the housing shortage in Marion and to plan means of relieving the situation. Mr. Stafford was appointed chairman of the Chamber of Commerce housing committee by Robert E. White, president.

Serving with Mr. Stafford are the following: Leslie E. Adams, E. R. Fritchard, James E. Reed, E. G. Siefert, Lloyd Amrine, Homer Cole and George Probst. The biggest factors handicapping immediate construction are the lack of building material and the limited number of workers available. The committee pointed out that many Marion residents are anxious to build and in most cases the necessary funds are available, but the actual construction is delayed because of the situation resulting from the other two factors.

Since so many of the skilled workmen were inducted into the armed forces during the past few years, the shortage of workers in the building trade has become really acute.

Hope for Relief

A number of the business men contacted recently expressed the hope that since men were being discharged more rapidly from service now, the shortage of workers would be relieved greatly when some of them returned to the contracting trade. The housing committee is anxious to contact servicemen who wish to return to the building industry, hoping in this way to partly solve the employment shortage.

Actual building here has been limited during the past 10 years and it is estimated that less than 100 new dwellings have been erected since 1925. At that time a survey gave the number of vacant houses as being 178. The 1935 figure was given in contrast to 925 vacancies which had been reported three years earlier.

At the present time the only vacancies are thought to be houses which are unfit for occupancy or those which are being remodeled.

Permits Issued

Building permits for a number of new homes and permits for converting single unit dwellings into apartments or quarters designed for more than one family have been issued during the past few months. Some of these projects are under way, others are handicapped, again by lack of material and labor.

It was estimated by a number of business men that between 100 and 500 homes were needed in Marion at the present time. One stated that 500 were needed if they could be constructed to sell between $4,500 and $5,000. Others thought the price bracket should be higher, stating that the cost of building, which has almost doubled since 1935 would result in construction of many cheaper-class houses. Some observers here explain that if a house is constructed to sell for a higher price, the material used will be of better quality and a more complete job could be done by the workmen.

See Another Solution

Still another expressed the belief that the erection of pre-fabricated houses was a solution to both the lack of material as well as for the shortage of workers. Marion has an approximate population of 32,500 persons according to the latest estimates available. According to the last housing survey made in 1935 there were at that time 7,800 dwelling units. Real estate values in 1935, compared with those of the present day, prompted one man to say "In 1935 it was a buyers' paradise, now the sellers have the edge." Plans are underway now for the conversion of several single unit dwellings into accommodations for several families. Quite a few permits also have been issued recently to owners who desire to convert a single house into either a duplex or double. Three permits for new dwellings have been issued in the past two months.

Shortage Grows Worse

The present shortage is aggravated too by the return of servicemen who wish to reestablish a home. Many of these families have been living with relatives or in towns located near camps where the husband was stationed. Now these couples are returning to look for housing facilities.

Even the number of evictions filed at municipal court reflect the present trend. In 1935, thirty-five families were evicted. That number has doubled according to records up to the middle of November.

Activities of the Chamber of Commerce housing committee will get under way as soon as possible.

Having Trouble Finding Somewhere to Live? Wait Till 1946 --- Then It'll Be Really Tough

(This is the third of three stories on the national housing shortage. It describes the situation from the Washington viewpoint.)

By ALEXANDER E. GEORGE
Associated Press Feature Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—The housing shortage already the most critical in the country's history will be worse next year.

The return of millions of veterans, combined with an estimated 1,500,000 marriages and 2,750,000 births in 1946, mean a much greater increase in the demand than in housing units. It is estimated that no more than 475,000 new units will be built next year, under the most favorable conditions.

There was a pronounced scarcity of housing before the war due to a deficiency in home building. On top of that, the war brought a population increase of more than eight millions since 1940, and the migration of millions of workers and their families from farms and small towns to the cities.

Relief in 1938
Housing experts figure construction can't get rolling until 1937 and that substantial relief from the shortage will not come before 1948. Reconversion Director John W. Snyder says "the demand for houses during the next year may be four or five times as great as any possible supply."

Any large expansion of the building program is going to take time. Beside shortages of materials and labor, the number of contractors engaged in direct construction and maintenance work has fallen from 500,000 in March 1940 to about 140,000 now. Another complication is labor-management trouble in some materials industries.

Under the best circumstances, Washington sees no quick, one-way solution. Government agencies plan to help grease the ways for a vast, long-range building program by private industry, but officials declare that its success is primarily the responsibility of local communities.

"We must depend for the most part on the initiative of American business men to decide to enter the building field, arrange credit, organize the businesses, hire staffs and obtain supplies," said Snyder.

Breaks It Down
John D. Blandford Jr., administrator of the National Housing Agency, estimates that some 12,800,000 new housing units will be needed over the next 10 years. He divides these roughly into 3,600,000 units at monthly charges of less than $20, some 4,800,000 units at monthly charges between $20 and $40, and 4,200,000 units at monthly charges above $40.

A revised general housing bill has been introduced in the senate by Democratic Senators Wagner of New York and Ellender of Louisiana and Republican Senator

Taft of Ohio. A special feature of their "non-partisan" bill is designed to enable private builders to do more building for the so-called "middle-income market"—families that can pay between $20 and $40 a month.

The bill has two major plans to aid middle-income families. One is limited to houses where the principal loan is not more than $2,000, which Senator Wagner says means about a $3,300 house. It raises the amount of mortgage eligible for FHA insurance from 80 or 90 per cent of the cost of the house to 95 per cent. This reduces the down payment of the middle-income family to five per cent.

It extends the "paying off" (amortization) period from 20 or 25 years to 32 years and reduces the maximum interest allowable from five per cent to four per cent. This plan also includes government insurance of the money invested for construction up to 85 per cent of the cost of the house. This is to enable builders to undertake construction in volume before finding owner-occupants, and thus achieve savings and better planning.

Insurance Plan
The other plan aimed at aiding middle-income families provides for FHA insurance or private financing for mutual home ownership or for rental housing. The insured mortgage may be as high as 95 per cent in the case of mutual or public organizations, and 90 per cent in other cases. The "paying off" period is extended to 40 years and the maximum interest rate is fixed at 3 1/2 per cent.

The Wagner-Ellender-Taft measure would authorize federal loans to local communities for urban slum clearance and redevelopment and loans for housing for families of very low income. It also provides for $60,000 additional units of low-rent public housing over a 4-year period. These are designed for families who pay rents of less than $20 a month.

Meanwhile, the Civilian Production Administration is granting priorities for equipment and as strengthening emergency controls to prevent hoarding of building supplies.

Reconversion Director Snyder says the federal rent agencies will try to discourage excessive and unsound lending on mortgages. They will enlist voluntary cooperation of banks and other lending institutions to lessen the danger of inflated prices of homes due to excessive demand. That could lead, he says, to a shortage of housing.

An information and advisory service on home values will be provided by the National Housing Agency working with industry representatives. This information will be available to any prospective home buyer regardless of whether federal aid in financing the home is involved.

Representative Patman of Texas has introduced a bill in the house which provides for a "housing czar" with power during the next two years to fix maximum sale prices on both new and old houses. The Patman measure also would have the government engaged in emergency housing projects where lack of sufficient housing makes that appear necessary. This measure has been attacked by builders and some members of congress as tending to "regimentation" and as being unworkable. The Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill has no provision for fixing maximum sale prices on houses, new or old.

Should the ailing ankle fail to mend by game time, either George Satter, Harold Kissling or Bill McClain will get the replacement hole. The loss of Davis for this game would be a great handicap to the LaRue basketball team as he is not only a leading scorer, but a clever passer and playmaker in addition to being an exceptional defensive player.

PLAYGROUND BACKED

BY BUCYRUS LIONS

SPECIAL TO THE STAR
BUCYRUS, Dec. 6.—An east side playground in Bucyrus to consist of 12 acres of grounds was assured Tuesday night when city council members agreed a proposed plan for sponsorship of such a playground by the Bucyrus Lions club.

An option on the grounds, located directly across from the fairgrounds on Whitestone street, is already in the hands of a special Lions club committee and funds for putting the grounds in condition will be sought from public subscriptions. A number of commitments of financial assistance have already been made by industrialists, a club spokesman said.

Included is a plan for flooding a lowland for winter skating.

Other business to come before city council was a proposal for an increase in hospital rates which might make possible a boost of pay for nurses and also needed hospital repairs.

Eleven Ohio High Schools Share Spots in INS All-State Football Selections

By LOREN W. TERRELL
INS Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—Stars in different schools, representing virtually every section of the state, make up the 1945 INS All-State football team announced today.

The first time in the long history of the INS All-State football team a single school was able to contribute more than a single player. Usually at least one player from two or more schools made the team and last year schools landed two each on the team.

Honors Split

Just as no single team captured the spotlight during the season just ended, the team was able to dominate the state selections.

The one-man-per school ration was over into the second and third team selections as well. However, but two of the schools won first team places while one additional berth on the second team.

The state team is the result of every Ohio sports editor's vote and the state's leading coaches' selection list of officials.

Of the 250 players singled out by the selectors for special mention, slightly more than half of the nominees won places on the first three teams among the honorable mentions.

Linemen Short

The poll clearly reflected an absence of outstanding backs and a severe shortage of top linemen. But any coach would be hard to concede every game

All-Ohio Team

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—The 1945 International News Service All-Ohio high school football team:

FIRST TEAM

Len Corbin, Warren, end; Robert Ploz, Martins Ferry, tackle; Robert Lally, Cleveland Cathedral Latin, guard; Clinton Knitz, Toledo Waite, center; Ed Leschansky, Dayton Chaminade, guard; Dick Hanlon, East Liverpool, tackle; Fred Bonk, Massillon, end; Bill Fleitz, Newark, back; Paul Wertz, Piqua, back; Tom Lobe, Cleveland Ignatius, back; Ralph Pucci, Canton McKinley, back.

SECOND TEAM

next fall already won if he could field this forward wall.

From a mathematical standpoint the All-Ohio is even tougher to make than the All-American teams of college football. The odds are far greater. For example, the first 11 boys represent the cream of a crop of nearly 15,000 athletes from more than 400 teams. Thus, only one of every 1,250 players won statewide acclaim.

Individual talent was the lone deciding factor. Won-lost records of the teams did not figure in the selections as the All-Ohio recognizes outstanding players only.

In most cases the balloting was close, especially among the ranking backfield candidates. So close was the voting in some cases that the scholastic rating of the stars was taken into consideration in making the final choice.

With one exception, seniors made a clean sweep of the first team.

The lone carryover from last year's All-Ohio was Len Corbin, Warren's flashy Negro end, incidentally Corbin was the leading votegetter, polling slightly more than one third of all the votes cast.

Bill Fleitz, powerful Newark fullback, ran second best in the balloting and Clinton Knitz, Toledo Waite center, was third.

Four Upper Sandusky Stars Win Honors

Four members of Upper Sandusky's unbeaten and untied Rams won recognition on the INS All-Ohio high school football team. Jack Houser was awarded a tackle spot on the third team, while honorable mention went to Robert Schmelker, end; Gene Rife, back, and Don Courtad, center.

Harding Foes Listed

From teams played by Harding's Presidents, several players were given honorable mention:

Dick Siferd, Lima South guard; Nate Wilson, Delaware guard; Dave Wentz, Mansfield, center; Ollie Kline and Kenny Horvath, Mansfield backs.

OSU ALL STARS TO PLAY HERE DEC. 12

Y-Indus Cagers Book Benefit Game at Armory.

Wednesday, Dec. 12, the Ohio State All-Stars will play the Y-Indus in Marion on the Armory floor at 8:30 p. m.

The proceeds of the game will be used for the purchase of a movie picture projector for the Y. W. C. A. Price of admission will be 25 cents including tax.

Ohio State's lineup will include: The Columbia Clipper's Dick Fishburne, Steve O'Dea, Harry Daugherty, Bob Dove and Charles Fazio and Dick Mulvaine. Mulvaine is still in the Army, but the others listed are State players.

The use of the Armory was made possible through the cooperation of Central High school and Elmer Smith, speaking for Co. M has made a special price as Co. M's part in contributing for the new machine for the "Y."

Ohio State League Okays Bonus Plan; Tribe Maps Tilts

The Ohio State league approved yesterday at the Deshler Wallick hotel in Columbus a bonus system to be shared by players of the four top finishing teams, the playoff winner and runner-up.

President Frank M. Colley said one cent of each general admission during the year would go into the bonus pool. It then will be divided thus:

Thirty per cent to the players of the pennant-winning team; 15 per cent to the second place team; 10 per cent, third place; 5 per cent, fourth place; 25 per cent to the playoff winner, and 15 per cent to play-off runner-up.

Opens April 30

The league decided to open its 140-game schedule on April 30 and close Sept. 8.

If Dayton, O., comes into the loop as the eighth club, the opening day's schedule will be Springfield at Dayton; Middletown at Richmond, Ind.; Lima at Marion, and Zanesville at Newark.

Directors decided that the all-star team, which will play the first place club in July, should be selected by the baseball writers in the eight cities rather than by a vote of the fans as in the past.

Indians To Travel

The Cleveland Indians announced a 35-game Grapefruit league schedule during next spring's season training in which only one minor league club is included.

The 35 games against major league opposition include nine with the New York Giants, the Tribe's traditional spring enemy. The Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees will be met from American league opposition, and the Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants from the National league.

Marionites Attend Baseball Parley

Officers and directors of the Marion Cardinals baseball club attending the annual minor league baseball meeting at Columbus this week are Municipal Court Judge W. Dexter Hazen, president; Hugo Malo, vice president; Wally Schang, manager; Robert Maag, Richard Lau, George Alber, Wilson Tway and Jack Parquar, directors.

CLEVELAND SIGNS UP FOUR TO FARM CHAIN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—The Cleveland Indians have added four more farm clubs to their chain, giving them a total of at least seven for next season, it was disclosed today.

They will own and operate the Bakersfield, Calif., club in the new California league and will have working agreements with Harrisburg, Pa., in the Interstate league, Pittsfield, Mass., in the Canadian-American league, and Appleton, Wis., in the Wisconsin State league.

The Indians also are continuing farm agreements with Baltimore in the International league, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in the Eastern league, and Batavia, N. Y., in the Pony league. They may possibly add two more before next spring.

Topping Withdraws from Old Pro Loop

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn franchise in the National Football league, said today he was withdrawing his club from the established gridiron circuit and joining the All-American conference which will begin operating next year.

Topping's team in the new circuit will be known as the New York football Yankees, he told newsmen at a press conference in the offices of the baseball Yankees of which he also is part owner.

The switch climaxed a lengthy series of unsuccessful negotiations between Topping and his associates and the owners of the New York Giants in the National league over the assignment of dates for games in New York City next season.

became the prized piece of ivory at the 44th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball league got down to serious business and serious trading.

The major league clubs had no official status at the convention, of course, but they all were represented and the dope was that the New York Giants, the Boston Braves and the Pittsburgh Pirates were interested in getting Cooper's contract from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates were reported ready to offer catcher Al Lopez and the Braves were ready to toss in backstopper Phil Masi. The Giants were said to be ready to make only cash.

It was reported from sources the boys said were reliable that Jimmy Humphries was going from the Chicago White Sox to the Philadelphia Phillies.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I ECHOED Mary's wish silently, but knowing my small daughter's idiosyncrasies, I had no great optimism concerning her keeping silent about the photographs of Mary which George had given to me, and which her sharp eyes had glimpsed.

Faith loves to be told "secrets" and she manages to keep them for several hours. Then she begins to hint to the person from whom the secret is to be kept that she knows something which must not be told, and goes on from there in gradually increasing revelation until the whole truth is out.

Must Work Fast

But I knew that if I worked fast, I perhaps could keep her quiet for a few hours until we could evolve some method of keeping her away from Noel's vicinity. I also knew that I must do some tall and fancy fictionizing and prepared myself for the first question palpably trembling on her lips.

"Why do you have to burn Mary's pretty pictures?" she queried dolefully, her lips quivering.

"We don't have to burn them, darling," I said, reassuringly.

"But—but—" Faith floundered "you said 'What do you want me to do about these photos of Mary and Cousin Mary and their friends?"

Uncanny Memory

Dicky and others of the family have said that Faith's memory for the exact words of a conversation she has heard but I am afraid maternal pride was not my predominant emotion as I listened to her.

"I'll double as Suphera," Mary said "it will be just like it."

Then she put her arms to the little girl who asked her, and Faith ran into them.

"I'm afraid your ears weren't as sharp as they usually are, my little darling," Mary said.

"You didn't hear me right?" I didn't say "Burn them!" I said "Turn them!"

Faith gave a relieved little sigh. "I'm awfully glad they're not going to be burned," she said. "They're so pretty."

Eyes Bewildered

Then her eyes clouded with bewilderment.

"But what do you mean by 'Turn them'?" she queried. "Turn them over? But why?"

"Listen carefully, Darling," Mary said.

"Then she spoke rapidly to me. 'You'd better listen, too,' she said. 'This is a real inspiration!'

"I was going to say, 'Turn them over,' Faith," she said, "but your feeling bad about the burning stopped me. Now I'm going to tell you just what I started to say, and also the reason I had for saying it."

"I started to say, 'Turn them over to the photographer, Aunt Maudie,' when you interrupted me."

"I'm sorry I 'rupted you," Faith said contritely. "But I don't understand. Didn't the photographs take the pictures?"

"Yes, he did," Mary explained, "and that's the reason we were going to give them back to him. We want him to make nicer copies of them, smaller ones that will fit into a photograph scrap book."

"Oh! Like the one Granzie has?" Faith queried, unconsciously helping us along. "Only hers is almost full. She said the other day, she'd have to get another one."

"Ah, that's our surprise," Mary said. "It's a Christmas secret, and we don't want Granzie to reveal it until Christmas morning."

We're going to give her a new photograph scrapbook, and on the first two pages we're going to have these two pictures you saw, and other ones of every member of her family. Now, can you keep that secret?"

Nicer Copies

"Yes, he did," Mary explained, "and that's the reason we were going to give them back to him. We want him to make nicer copies of them, smaller ones that will fit into a photograph scrap book."

"Oh! Like the one Granzie has?" Faith queried, unconsciously helping us along. "Only hers is almost full. She said the other day, she'd have to get another one."

"Ah, that's our surprise," Mary said. "It's a Christmas secret, and we don't want Granzie to reveal it until Christmas morning."

We're going to give her a new photograph scrapbook, and on the first two pages we're going to have these two pictures you saw, and other ones of every member of her family. Now, can you keep that secret?"

D.A.V. Chapter Holds

Lapel pins were presented to new members at an initiation held by Marion Chapter No. 22, Disabled American Veterans in the Army Tuesday night. Those initiated were Joseph Ferriman and John R. Swartz. Presentation of the pins was made by William Kehrwecker, past commander. Minor Hart, present commander of the Chapter, was in charge of the service. The application of Donald Augenstein was received.

BOND ISSUE SQUEEZES IN
By The Associated Press
CANTON, O., Dec. 5.—A proposed $30,000 bond issue for construction of a football stadium at nearby Minerva today was declared passed by the Cuyahoga county board of elections. The issue polled a 65.2 per cent majority, barely topping the required 65 per cent majority mark, the board said.

YOUR HEALTH
By HERMAN RUNDEN, M.D.
Blood Clots
Clotting of the blood is a very complex process. A number of substances take part in it. One of these substances is known as prothrombin. It has been found that persons lacking in vitamin K will have a deficiency of prothrombin. There is a drug known as dicumarol which also will produce a prothrombin deficiency, and hence will prolong the clotting time of the blood. Other than this effect it does not appear to have any harmful action on the human being.

You may wonder of what value such a drug as dicumarol may be, but it has proven to be life saving. Quite often, following operations, persons may have what is known as a pulmonary embolism or there may develop a condition known as thrombophlebitis.

A pulmonary embolism consists of a small bit of material, such as part of a blood clot, which lodges in the lung. Thrombophlebitis means the formation of a blood clot in a vein.

At the Mayo Clinic, according to Doctor Nelson W. Barker, it was found that among 678 persons who had pulmonary embolism and recovered from it, and who are not given dicumarol, 297 or 43.8 per cent later on had another attack of thrombophlebitis or pulmonary embolism and in 124 or 18.3 per cent the embolism was fatal.

However, in 180 similar persons who had pulmonary embolism and recovered and who were given dicumarol only two had thrombophlebitis or embolism later on and in only one instance was the condition fatal. About the same results were obtained in two groups of patients with thrombophlebitis following operation.

That is, if they were given dicumarol they were much less likely to have a second attack of thrombophlebitis or a pulmonary embolism.

Dicumarol is effective when given by mouth. However, there are certain instances in which it cannot be used, according to Doctor Barker. He thinks that it should not be employed when the person's kidneys are not working properly, when there is some indication of liver damage, if there is purpura present, a condition in which the blood does not clot properly or when there has been any recent operation on the brain or spinal cord. He states that it should be employed cautiously in

PILES REMOVED NO KNIFE CAUSTIC LOST TIME

Even today, many educated people SIMPLY DO NOT REALIZE how easy it is to get rid of Hemorrhoids permanently. This is because the modern science of ELECTRO-THERAPY is so new that most people have not heard about the blessed relief it brings to thousands of Pile sufferers without the knife, without caustics, with minimum time lost from work.

If they know—if YOU know—how simple my electrical method was, you would not endure another day the dragging, soreness of Piles. Even if you Piles are not causing you great pain at present, they may get worse, if neglected. Piles are a humorous formation that doesn't just "go away" by itself. Piles have to be removed! Even a so-called "mild" case may be undermining your health at this moment by aggravating your stomach trouble, nervousness, headaches, run-down tired feeling, or constipation.

The wisest solution is to REMOVE THE PILES. My new, safe, quick electrical method is so successful that grateful patients drive hundreds of miles to reach my clinic in Ashby. My office hours are 10-12, 2-4, 7-9 every day except Thursday and Sunday. NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY.

If you suffer from piles, you owe it to yourself to come to my clinic for a FREE EXAMINATION. Don't put it off. There is nothing to fear. COME NOW!

Backing Into Security

DR. VANNEVAR BUSH, chief of wartime scientific research, has dropped an atomic bomb on the atomic bomb—and for meritorious service the Little People's association probably will vote him its unofficial award of a gross of nonhabit-forming sedatives.

Dr. Bush, who may be assumed to know as much about the latest means of killing as anyone else, differs with the theory that the atomic bomb is going to blow civilization into a cloud of dust that will hover in the universe an instant in infinity, then be forgotten. His reasoning is simple, possibly too simple for some of the heavily befuddled intellectuals that have been grappling with the possibilities of atomic energy.

It consists of one obvious deduction—that no country will dare to use atomic bombs lest atomic bombs be used against it. This upside-down application of the Golden Rule gives comfort to Dr. Bush, as it has given comfort during the recent waiting to countless others who must have had the same thought at about the same time. It is, as Wendell Willkie insisted, one world after all. The explosion at Hiroshima and Nagasaki were not merely catastrophes that happened to half-savage people in a remote land; they happened vicariously to all of us. Security does not lie in weakness that tempts the strong to strike a sudden blow in the hope of easy triumph, but in strength that stays the upraised fist of aggressors who know there can be no easy triumph, only ruin for all. War, except as an instrument of nihilism, is more remote by an iota, or perhaps two or three, than it was before the first atomic bomb was exploded.

Everybody Else Out of Step?

BY THEIR own failure to offer constructive criticism and to support the constructive criticism of others, leaders of the American labor movement are proving themselves guilty of stand-patting.

They are in the indefensible position of accusing everybody else of being out of step. It never works that way in a representative democracy. Fortunately, eventually, the will of the majority prevails.

The labor leaders had an opportunity last summer to get behind the proposal by Senators Ball, Burton and Hatch; the purpose of their bill, based on recommendations by a committee of sympathetic experts, was to avert a crisis that would precipitate punitive legislation. The labor leaders passed up the chance to admit that after a decade of radical change in organized labor's status the time was ripe for codification of their rights and responsibilities.

The war ended. Labor leaders had an opportunity to rise to the responsibility of the great power that had come into their hands. They had the privilege of choice between doing everything they could to expedite reconversion and between doing what most observers had been predicting they would do. At the last minute, they were given a chance to redeem themselves in a round-table conference. But the experts were right; the labor leaders lacked the composite will to behave like labor statesmen. They preferred arbitrary demands and strike showdowns. The crisis that the Ball-Burton-Hatch bill was designed to avert is with us, and there is worse to come.

It may be fairly questioned whether or not some of the labor leaders are interested in public welfare; they have done nothing to show they accept the broad responsibility that goes with the possession of broad power in a republic. They are on trial before the public, a court from whose verdict there is no appeal.

Long Count

SECRETARY OF WAR PATTERSON, who gets paid for knowing, says the Army can't keep abreast of its discharge schedule unless new soldiers are inducted under the selective service act. Voluntary enlistments alone, he says, are not enough.

This is his reply to a statement made in the senate last Friday by Chapman Revercomb, Republican senator from West Virginia. Following passage of the voluntary enlistment act, explained Senator Revercomb, enlistments began to climb until they reached a fortnightly rate of more than 80,000 in the first half of November. This testifies to the success of the voluntary enlistment act, believes Senator Revercomb, and warrants early attention to the possibility of suspending further operation of the selective service act.

His opinion on this point is backed up by a previous presidential statement that replacements of 50,000 a month would be enough to sustain the armed forces. Yet, Secretary Patterson seems to deny categorically the figures used by the West Virginia senator and by President Truman. There is a discrepancy of views so marked that it cannot be disregarded. The citizens who are being asked to continue to accept military duty as members of a civilian army in peacetime are entitled to a complete statement of policy accompanied by reliable statistics.

Surge, says Anne O'Hare McCormick, overstates our wealth. It is no great mystery where it got hold of this idea—probably from us.

News Behind the News
By PAUL MALLON

Source of President's Labor Program.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Pres-ident Truman's labor-cooling program was largely the inner handiwork of John R. Steelman, the New York conciliator who has quietly brought into a White House office some weeks back, and of Labor Secretary Schweikert.

Mr. Steelman has had a career of some 20 years or more as labor conciliator in and out of the government. He has maintained an impeccable judicial attitude, although some employers occasionally have regarded him as leaning a little more on labor's side than on their's. Schweikert, on the other hand, has been a strong left-center union politico and judge.

This cooling and fact-sifting plan based upon railroad labor mediation, you may recall, was suggested as a solution in this column published Oct. 30, and more specifically presented again on Nov. 13 as an objective of the labor-management conference. My comment then was "such a solution would achieve stabilization of the current chaos rather swiftly."

Labor Opposed

Despite these objective or labor-leaning origins of the proposal, the CIO Auto Workers and indeed even AFL President Green, immediately protested and indicated they would resist.

In advance, Mr. Truman felt so sure that they would accept that he acted without legal authority to set up fact-finding commissions for the auto strike and for the threatened steel strike.

I think the basis of the union objections is not primarily to the plan itself. If the unions have a just case, they can get justice from the program. A final decision by one representative of labor, one of management and the third deciding man from the public, represents the best possible hearing labor could expect to get for its cause.

Even then the decision is not binding. It merely represents a public judgment as to what is right and just, and carries only the weight and power of its manifest fairness.

But the unions have built up a great pressure game now behind the Auto Workers' case. That strike was the front running test case for the 30 per cent wage increase demand, backed by all laboring leaders. Mr. Green and his AFL, although they have not said much about this phase.

White heat fervor has been worked up among the strikers and other union men eagerly watching the result of the contest. It is not often noticed in the public prints, but the human element, the human passion and excitement of leaders and men in strikes, is unquestionably a greater factor in the decision which union leaders make than the wage facts of the matter, or the working conditions.

Nerves become frayed all down the line. Denunciation and recrimination of the managements, and vice versa, naturally charac-terize the negotiations rather than any cool consideration of the facts (see Thomas-Reuther telegram to the President.) The whole situation runs to emotionalism and propaganda on both sides.

Too Much Headway

Now the Truman plan to eliminate all that and require both sides to submit their facts to impartial judgment, should have come out of the labor-management conference. The President and his advisers had planned it that way. From the inside, it would appear they leaned back too far in allowing the conferees to have their own head.

Mr. Steelman, for example, was careful not to see or communicate with anyone connected with either labor or management throughout the conference. Schweikert remained away also, and Mr. Truman only saw the delegates in occasional groups of three and fours.

As a result, the solution he wanted was not forthcoming, and he had to go to congress to get it. He will get it there because it represents just about the mildest thing congress wants to do about the strikes.

The great impetus which has made the railway labor mediation base program so successful (only one minor strike in 19 years) was because both labor and management wanted it and got together and wrote it themselves.

Resistance by the unions now to application of these sound settlement principles for the large strike cases in which the public has national interest, may tend to impede the effective workings of the plan. The White House apparently believes that, after thinking it over, the unions will drop their resistance.

Raise Forecast

Those who have looked into the facts of the Auto Workers' case say the fact-finding commission can be expected to recommend a wage increase between 15 and 20 per cent which should be eminently satisfactory to the union.

They have some facts of which I am not fully aware, indicating prices and living costs would justify that much of a boost. Such a decision would practically fix national policy and could conceivably solve the whole situation.

If the auto workers go against this solution, the whole union case will go back to its current chaos.

Furthermore, union resistance would practically force congress to pass some of the present pending bills requiring the unions to meet their national responsibilities, in a degree commensurate with their great national political power—to sue and be sued at least, and perhaps made subject to the anti-trust and other laws, thus placing them on an equal footing for the future with business.

There are no other alternatives. Therefore, my guess is labor will come around and accept the solution.

Congress Holds Up Food Plan
By Walter Lippmann

A MINORITY, chiefly but not entirely composed of Republicans, has been holding up the appropriations for UNRRA, alleging that American funds should not be used in any foreign country which does not give American newspaper correspondents full opportunity to report how the funds are used.

Any experienced journalist who has worked in foreign countries will tell congress that this method of promoting freedom of the press is a piece of plausible nonsense. It is one of those proposals which seem sensible enough when first they are looked at and quite senseless when they are looked into. For it is a proposal to have American reporters perform the duties of American officials.

It supposes that American newspapers have enough foreign correspondents to cover regularly and continuously the distribution of relief in all the cities of Greece, Poland, Yugoslavia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Italy, the Ukraine, Byelorussia, Korea, Formosa and China.

Plan Not Practical

It supposes that this army of American correspondents—which of course does not exist—could not be recruited, which American newspapers could not afford to maintain, whose reports our papers would not have space to publish—can make more accurate reports on the operation of relief than our embassies and legations and consulates, our military missions and our intelligence services, not to say the Americans who serve in UNRRA itself.

The proposal, assuming it to be sincere, is plainly the work of men who do not know how correspondents get most of their information in foreign countries where for the most part they do not speak the language, and where there are no free and independent local newspapers. They get it from American officials and the officials of friendly governments, and from persons with whom they make contact largely through American and other officials.

The amount of first-hand direct reporting that can be done independently of the regular American official observers is much smaller than most laymen seem to realize. In fact, where UNRRA operates it would be the exception rather than the rule that a foreign correspondent obtained significant news that officials do not already know. He cannot have anything like the same opportunity to find out what is going on.

Misleading

It is, therefore, quite misleading for congressmen to tell our people that they must depend on the foreign correspondents to see to it that money given for relief is honestly administered. That is the business of our officials abroad. Where the press comes into it is to report to the people what the officials are reporting, and in watch, which they can do, whether the officials are making competent reports.

It never was, and never could be, the function of the press to be inspector, accountant, auditor, detective of a widespread, complicated operation like the administration of relief in some 13 or 14 foreign countries. These gentlemen in congress may think they are paying a compliment to the press but in fact they are trying to burden the press with a responsibility which it can not discharge.

The obstruction which the UNRRA appropriations have encountered this autumn has brought this country very near to a moral default on a solemn commitment. UNRRA was created on the initiative of the United States and in March, 1944, the house by a vote of 338-54 and the senate by 47-14 passed Public Law 267 offering, without conditions, to give UNRRA an amount equal to one per cent of our national income in 1943. All the other United Nations, whose territory had not been devastated by the war, made the same pledge of one per cent of their 1943 national income.

Great Britain has fulfilled her pledge; we have not. The necessary authorizations and appropriations have been stalled in congress on the alleged ground that the destitute must starve, the sick go without medicines, unless our correspondents can be present.

Delay

The delay is a scandal and a dishonor. Already, for lack of funds congress had promised it, UNRRA has had to cancel orders for medicines, clothing, shoes, seeds, ploughs, and material to provide emergency shelters. That is a cruel punishment to inflict upon suffering humanity in the name of "freedom of the press." It has been a dishonorable thing to do in the name of a government which has justly prided itself that when it makes a pledge, it does not squirm out of it.

Of all the people in this country, newspapermen have the strongest reason for repudiating and repenting this demagoguery about the freedom of the press. Senator Wherry and his associates need have no fear that American journalists and editors who use the freedom of the press,

Health commissioners and sanitation supervisors from 12 counties held a one-day conference at Hotel Marion. A feature of the evening session was the screening of a motion picture portraying the construction of sanitary units and other health features. The picture was filmed in Marion, Crawford and Delaware counties under the supervision of Eugene B. Willey, Marion county sanitation supervisor and the supervisors in the other two counties.

A play, "Elmer" was given at the Thomas A. Edison Junior High school assembly. The cast included James Edgington, Glenn Himminger, Mary Ella Cleveland, Nola Craft, Betty Chard, Clara Lashey, Earl Emerson, Richard Fogley and William Moore. Miss Josephine Haley directed the play.

Clarence W. Snyder was elected president of the Marion County Alumni association of Ohio State university at the annual banquet held at the First Presbyterian church. Levi Lukins of Waldo was elected vice president. Miss Mary Jo Stafford, secretary-treasurer. Named on the advisory board were J. E. Frew, chairman, Miss Edith Brown, Miss Helen Dorsey, J. D. Williamson and Dr. F. E. Mahla.

An all-night prayer service opened at 7:30 p. m. and continued until 6 o'clock the following morning in the Greenwood Evangelical church. Twenty-five men and women attended the all-night service. In the group were representatives of the Salvation Army, the Toledo Avenue Mission, the Calvary Evangelical church and the Oakland Evangelical church. Similar meetings were held throughout the country in the interest of a worldwide revival.

who have defended it long before he ever took an interest in the press, who promote it wherever and whenever they can, have ceased to care about this most fundamental of all civil rights.

If the best of our editors and correspondents do not want to have helpless and destitute people suffer and die in order that they may get access to the radio, they need any instructions from Senator Wherry about the importance of freedom of the press. It is because they do not wish to strike foul blows for their principles, and that they do not think it wise or decent to submerge the principles of liberty, which are meant to give life and hope to mankind, in a morass of misery and disease and death.

The Pains of Victory
By Raymond Moley

ISOLATIONISM in the United States, if it returns, as it did in 1920, will not come from those over here who preach it every day. It will result from the mounting frustration of those who are dealing directly with the occupation and from what we hear and shall hear of growing difficulties in Europe.

It is now reported that researches by our military intelligence reveal that the Germans do not like us; that they like us less than the French, Russians and British. And that some of the clerics in Germany are suspicious of our actions and intentions.

Not Surprising

This news, taken by itself, is not startling. The German obsession for years to come will be that they were denied victory by the United States. After the other war, they hated Woodrow Wilson more than hated Allied leaders, because he tossed the decisive sword into the balance. It is hard to believe that our military intelligence investigators appraised German feelings in the Russian zone, or it is not clear how they could operate there. It is equally hard to believe that Germans prefer Russians or French to Americans.

But nonetheless, the situation is not improving. Essential coal is not being produced, because Germans in sufficient number and with suitable physical capacities are not available for the hard work of mining. Germany is mostly used husky Polish miners who were attracted by good pay. Now Poles are not forthcoming for that work. The Russians are using them. Transportation is still wrecked. Food is scarce. A sharp winter is setting in.

Our frustration is increased by difficulties over Germany's neighbors. They suffered from Nazi high-handedness before and during the war. But over the years they have had many with the Reich, and these survive.

We cracked the Jap's secret code. And read each plot and threat. (They pointed to Pearl Harbor but we were not suspicious YET.) Six weeks before the fateful blow their plans they did bare; It must have been the weather for we saw no danger there.

II.

They laid Pearl Harbor out in zone—And named 'em one by one! It didn't seem suspicious though To us in Washington; They plotted out the areas And asked about ships there, But how were we to gather that? Four play was in the air!

III.

"Surprise attack" in black and white Was mentioned, very true. (A harmless little message and For such a chosen few); No word to those on guard we sent—Short, wasn't it the know? The Japs asked this that day For no apparent reason than To while the time away!

IV.

"What carriers are anchored there?" This query was quite clear, But it did not occur to us That it was rather queer. We came to this deduction: that The Japs asked this that day For no apparent reason than To while the time away!

The Nippies tipped their hand to us And almost marked it "Rush"—We read the details leisurely And marked them all "hush, hush"; We thought it would not be the thing To tell to Short or "Kim"; Far out there on the battlefield With life so drab and grim.

Now that Mayor LaGuardia of New York is signed at $100,000 a year as a regular feature, a natural question is what becomes of his other Superman?

A name is being sought for the LaGuardia radio program. Our suggestion would be "Inflammation, Please."

But since the mayor emphasizes that he continue to expose loan sharks, how about "LOAN Ranger?"

That trial of the war criminals in Germany being stretched out to a point where inclusion it almost seems a guarantee of long life.

Quick Cure
By Truman Twill

People who know us keep asking, "How's tomorrow?" referring to T. Manville Twill, the yowler who keeps getting his name in the column. It's only courtesy to make a report for time to time.

T. Manville is well, thank you, but he can be a handful. Last week-end it came on him to do a rug. Saturday night he never came home. We kept hearing from him as he did his cutting, now north, now south, now east, now west.

Sunday morning he was spotted in the neighborhood's back yard, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, sitting under a tree reading the funny papers. In the top of the tree was a lady cat named X. Thrope—Miss Ann Thrope. T. Manville evidently figured he had an appointment with her whenever she decided to get her feet on the ground. He never has been any good at climbing trees himself, or rather never has been able to get down once he climbed up.

We took him to the station while Ann was on a long-distance call. In the middle of the call, Annie started down. T. Manville found the paper and stretched his muscles. The next Annie hit the ground, he made an off-balance run—and he and she disappeared northward over the horizon. This was more interesting than the call, and if the caller reads, "Pick me up, I'm down, camp—and watch the cat's hips!" It is a complicated situation to explain this over the phone.

T. Manville lost the race. Apparently he Thrope pivoted too sharp for him, because an hour later he was howling outside the door with a sprained ankle. The rest of the day he hobbled around, emitting yelps of pain. No one knew about Miss Thrope, even the master—and old master never talks.

The ankle was soaked in hot water. T. Manville was bawled like a stove in the kitchen. The woman who bawled and fussed as if she was something for his country, instead of a cat, when he should have zapped. It was a shock and he loved it, the home wrecker. Evidently he got up to move, he made a great start, three-legged it, and this went on until he sprang for the front door, forgetting to look open the door, he rushed out and took up and down the street. There, sitting the quick walk at the side of the lot was Thrope.

Old Stuck-and-a-Half picked up speed. So Miss Thrope. They disappeared over the horizon this time to the southward. Ah, wilderness in bloom, ah men! The next morning T. Manville's ankle was healed. Miss Thrope is only a faith healer.

To Give 50 Million Testaments

The Boston Post says: "The Gleason Foundation has provided millions of Bibles and Testaments for the armed forces around the world to be congratulated for their vision and their generosity. For, not content with restocking hotel rooms with Scriptures, they are supplying 50,000,000 school children with copies of the Psalms and New Testament. Here is progress toward a goal of major importance—a vital field—America's youth."

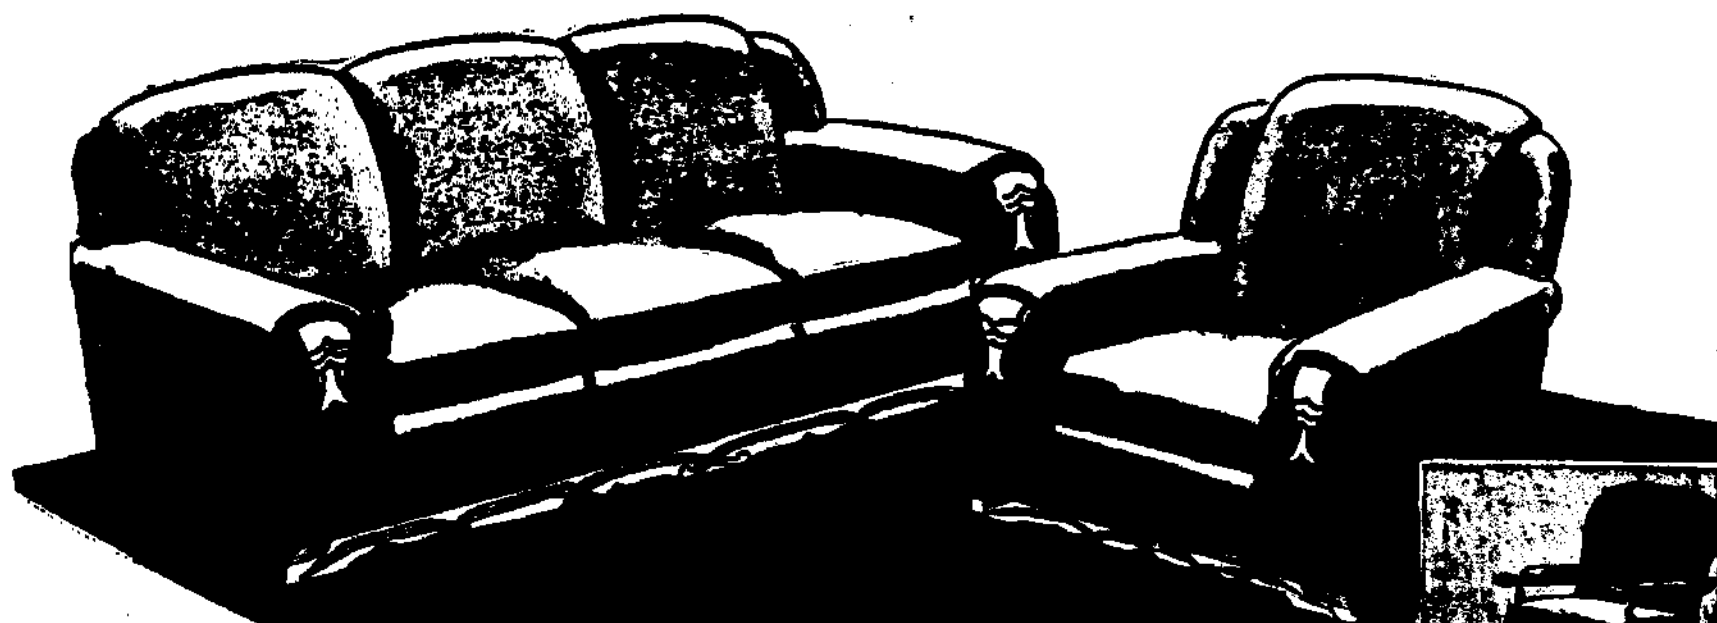

If parents, teachers, guardians, and others interested in the eternal welfare of America's youth, make it a point to see to it that the Testaments are properly used, it will be possible to say to myriads of children, "The Apostle Paul said to Timothy, 'Forasmuch as thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through a faith which is in Christ Jesus.' (II Timothy 3:15)"

Mail, Ship Early Advice of Postal, Express Officials

The volume of mail and express shipping during the holidays this year is expected to surpass the records of the past four years. Officials of both services based their observations on the amount of mail and packages which have already passed through the post-office and the express office.

Although there is no deadline for shippers to observe during this first festive Christmas, E. J. Salter, of the Marion branch of the Railway Express Agency and Homer D. Cole, postmaster, expressed the hope that Marionites would get their packages and mail on the way early.

Packages shipped before Dec. 10 of the states given in full since and cards mailed within a few days of that date would be assured of reaching their destination on time. Only a few days can the shippers be assured that they will be received before the Christmas holidays.

The exceptional movement of various holiday gifts to local shops and stores from production centers indicate a busy buying period for Marion residents, Mr. Salter said.

Careful packing of Christmas shipments is essential. The same consideration when mailing cards or letters will aid greatly in avoiding confusion at the post-office. All addresses should be clearly marked and the address complete. Mr. Cole urged residents to check addresses carefully before mailing cards thus eliminating confusion when postal clerks handle the mail.

Packages should have the names of the states given in full since abbreviations when hurriedly written often causes misrouting. The express agency has issued a "holiday address label," also bearing this reminder. "Do Not Open Till Christmas." These can be obtained without charge at the local office. Expressmen will make deliveries on Christmas day so that late-arriving packages may be received. Air-mail facilities will also be available to those who wait until the last moment.
